

Materials for Virtual Worship, Sunday 30 August Trinity 12

Collect for 12th Sunday After Trinity

Almighty and everlasting God,
you are always more ready to hear than we to pray
and to give more than either we desire or deserve:
pour down upon us the abundance of your mercy,
forgiving us those things of which our conscience is afraid
and giving us those good things which we are not worthy to ask
but through the merits and mediation of Jesus Christ your Son our Lord, who is alive and reigns with you,
in the unity of the Holy Spirit,
one God, now and for ever. Amen

Readings

Letter to the Romans 12:9-end

<sup>9</sup> Let love be genuine; hate what is evil, hold fast to what is good; <sup>10</sup> love one another with mutual affection; outdo one another in showing honour. <sup>11</sup> Do not lag in zeal, be ardent in spirit, serve the Lord. <sup>12</sup> Rejoice in hope, be patient in suffering, persevere in prayer. <sup>13</sup> Contribute to the needs of the saints; extend hospitality to strangers.

<sup>14</sup> Bless those who persecute you; bless and do not curse them. <sup>15</sup> Rejoice with those who rejoice, weep with those who weep. <sup>16</sup> Live in harmony with one another; do not be haughty, but associate with the lowly; do not claim to be wiser than you are. <sup>17</sup> Do not repay anyone evil for evil, but take thought for what is noble in the sight of all. <sup>18</sup> If it is possible, so far as it depends on you, live peaceably with

Materials for Virtual Worship, Sunday 30 August Trinity 12

all. <sup>19</sup> Beloved, never avenge yourselves, but leave room for the wrath of God; for it is written, 'Vengeance is mine, I will repay, says the Lord.' <sup>20</sup> No, 'if your enemies are hungry, feed them; if they are thirsty, give them something to drink; for by doing this you will heap burning coals on their heads.' <sup>21</sup> Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good.

Matthew's Gospel 16:21-end

<sup>21</sup> From that time on, Jesus began to show his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem and undergo great suffering at the hands of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and on the third day be raised. <sup>22</sup> And Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him, saying, 'God forbid it, Lord! This must never happen to you.' <sup>23</sup> But he turned and said to Peter, 'Get behind me, Satan! You are a stumbling-block to me; for you are setting your mind not on divine things but on human things.'

<sup>24</sup> Then Jesus told his disciples, 'If any want to become my followers, let them deny themselves and take up their cross and follow me. <sup>25</sup> For those who want to save their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake will find it. <sup>26</sup> For what will it profit them if they gain the whole world but forfeit their life? Or what will they give in return for their life?

<sup>27</sup> 'For the Son of Man is to come with his angels in the glory of his Father, and then he will repay everyone for what has been done. <sup>28</sup> Truly I tell you, there are some standing here who will not taste death before they see the Son of Man coming in his kingdom.'

Materials for Virtual Worship, Sunday 30 August Trinity 12

Reflection

Do not repay anyone evil for evil, but take thought for what is noble in the sight of all. (Romans 12:17)

What do the following actors have in common: Sean Connery, Daniel Craig, George Lazenby, Timothy Dalton, Pierce Brosnan and Roger Moore? The answer is, of course, that they have all played 007, aka James Bond, Her Majesty's secret agent, who is sent off on tasks to save the civilised world from the threat of an evil enemy, usually intent on world domination. I suspect that most of us will have at some time seen a James Bond movie and watched with admiration as Bond manages to escape moments of imminent death on many occasions aided by Q's ingenious gadgets designed to outwit the baddies. When I was small my favourite and much-loved toy was a gold Aston Martin Bond car complete with ejector seat and firing missiles.

With the latest Bond film (No Time to Die) just about to be released in November this year, I have been pondering on what is it that makes Bond such an enduring character. Well, obviously he's on the side of good and he's a bit of a rebel as he doesn't always obey orders from Whitehall; he never loses his cool, he's suave and always well-dressed.

But there is also a very dubious side to Bond's character which we admire, perhaps, because we know – or should know, that deep down it is immoral. Besides his string of 'Bond-girls' his chief characteristic is that he carries out numerous acts of violent revenge.

Materials for Virtual Worship, Sunday 30 August Trinity 12

Obviously, those whom Bond kills or disposes of deserve it, and we get a kind of satisfaction that justice has been delivered. Revenge, as the saying goes, is best served cold. Revenge doesn't have to be carried out at the James Bond level, but there are numerous small ways in which we plot and imagine acts of revenge and sometimes we do them: the neighbour's dog is barking, so we turn up the TV to annoy them; a work-colleague never answers our emails so we never answer theirs; a student takes other people's milk from the shared fridge so we replace it with sour milk.

But think again about the Bond character. Almost everything about him is false. He may appear suave, but he never has proper relationships; he is unmoved by the numerous killings he has to carry out in the line of duty; he has a very black and white view of justice.

Maybe we are attracted or even fascinated by Bond because he is the antithesis to everything which Jesus and therefore St Paul stood for.

In my sermon last week I argued, based on St Paul's Letter to the Romans, that there are no Christian ethics, only Christians who act ethically. Christian ethics are founded on faith, that is a commitment to God who is the creator and source of life – 'in him we live and move and have our being' (Acts 17:28) as Paul said in his speech in Athens. So, in this week's reading from Romans 12 having established this, St Paul is now able to spell out more clearly what this means in everyday life.

Materials for Virtual Worship, Sunday 30 August Trinity 12

At the heart of living in Christ, says St Paul, is a very simple idea: hate evil and do good (12:9). This sounds like, something James Bond would approve of, but it is in fact completely different. To do good cannot be achieved through evil; the ends do not justify the means. This is so because living in Christ means seeing other people, however despicable, as fellow human beings. The Greek word used by St Paul is 'philadelphia' – literally brotherly love (12:10), or as translated here 'mutual affection'. We know that as soon as we see our enemy as a fellow human, whether the enemy is an irritating neighbour, idle colleague, or selfish student, then our desire for revenge has to be reformed. How? Well Paul says, we are called to rejoice in hope, be patient in suffering, and persevere in prayer (12:12).

So, quite naturally being in Christ leads to acting in Christ. But of course, it is quite one thing to know what to do and actually to do it. St Paul quotes almost word for word from Jesus' teaching the Sermon on the Mount which describes the personal qualities which make us worthy to be made in the image of God.

The qualities which Paul selects are those which directly oppose the desire for revenge. We are to bless those that persecute us, feed those we regard as our enemies, resist repaying evil with evil, and avoid seeing ourselves as morally superior to others.

Now, you may think this is all well and good, but can this actually work in practice? Aren't there times when it would be irresponsible not to resist our enemies?

Materials for Virtual Worship, Sunday 30 August Trinity 12

There are some Christians who think that resistance of our enemies is sometimes necessary, but it never justifies the use of violence. War is not an option.

I'm not sure. I think there are times when war as a last resort might be justified, not motivated by revenge but in the pursuit of peace. This does not make war in itself good, simply the least worst option. In a complex and difficult world there are times when the state and we as Christians have to act with 'dirty hands'. This is very far removed from the James Bond world where good and evil are so black and white that violence against evil is justified.

But perhaps I am wrong and maybe it is that I lack sufficient faith in the God who says 'vengeance is mine' not yours. I am struck by the words of Mahatma Gandhi who found inspiration for his non-violent resistance in Jesus' Sermon on the Mount:

It is my conviction that the root of evil is want of a living faith in a living God. It is a first-class human tragedy that peoples of the earth who claim to believe in the message of Jesus who they describe as the Prince of Peace show little of that belief in actual practice.

(Mahatma Gandhi: The Essential Writings p 42)

Even if I am not sure about the use of war, one thing I can be sure of is that the desire for revenge, however trivial, is the root of evil and contrary to the life of faith.

Michael Wilcockson

Materials for Virtual Worship, Sunday 30 August Trinity 12

Hymn (Gradual) Praise, my soul, the King of Heaven

- 1 Praise, my soul, the King of Heaven;
To His feet thy tribute bring.
Ransomed, healed, restored, forgiven,
Who like thee His praise should sing
Praise Him! Praise Him!
Praise the everlasting King.
- 2 Praise Him for His grace and favour
To our fathers in distress.
Praise Him still the same for ever,
Slow to chide, and swift to bless
Praise Him! Praise Him!
Glorious in His faithfulness.
- 3 Father-like He tends and spares us;
Well our feeble frame He knows.
In His hands He gently bears us,
Rescues us from all our foes.
Praise Him! Praise Him!
Widely as His mercy flows.
- 4 Angels, help us to adore Him
Ye behold Him face to face;
Sun and moon, bow down before Him,
Dwellers all in time and space.
Praise Him! Praise Him!
Praise with us the God of grace.

Henry Lyte (1793-1847)

Materials for Virtual Worship, Sunday 30 August Trinity 12

Hymn (at Offertory) The kingdom of God is justice and joy

- 1 The kingdom of God is justice and joy,
for Jesus restores what sin would destroy;
God's power and glory in Jesus we know,
and here and hereafter the kingdom shall grow.

- 2 The kingdom of God is mercy and grace,
the captives are freed, the sinners find place,
the outcast are welcomed God's banquet to share,
and hope is awakened instead of despair.

- 3 The kingdom of God is challenge and choice,
believe the good news, repent and rejoice.
His love for us sinners brought Christ to his cross,
our crisis of judgement for gain or for loss.

- 4 God's kingdom is come, the gift and the goal,
in Jesus begun, in heaven made whole;
the heirs of the kingdom shall answer his call,
and all things cry glory to God all in all.

Bryn Rees (1911-1983)
© Alexander Scott

Post Communion Prayer

God of all mercy,
in this eucharist you have set aside our sins
and given us your healing:
grant that we who are made whole in Christ
may bring that healing to this broken world,
in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord.